

short presentation of the caravane on Bamabara (video)

In the everyday communication in numerous countries in Africa mainly african respective local languages are spoken – and this is only partly due to the fact, that many people have learned not more than the essentials of the former colonial languages. In Mali, for example, most people speak bambara, in Senegal wolof is the most used language. It is against this background that one can find on our website also videos in Bambara and Wolof.
